

The tactical-instructions process — end to end

Which client conditions actually bind the numbers?

A client's tactical instructions vary endlessly, but their SHAPE falls into just three handling tiers. The copilot classifies each ask and is honest about what it can enforce today — it never pretends an instruction is binding when it is only a note.

ENFORCED
BINDS A COMPUTED NUMBER

Checked against real data and allowed to gate a trade — a target weight (via Apply), or an absolute price level on a priceable instrument.

e.g. “buy gold below $4,000/oz”

MONITORED
WATCHED, NOT YET BINDING

On the watchlist and flagged when hit, but can't gate the math yet — typically a relative move that needs a defined reference point.

e.g. “add after a 15-20% pullback”

ADVISORY
SHAPES THE WRITE-UP ONLY

Folds into the narrative and deck notes — execution style, selection, questions, research context. Never touches a figure.

e.g. “buy in tranches”, “low fees”

THE CLIENT’S ACTUAL MESSAGE, TIER BY TIER

The client’s words	Shape	Tier today	What the copilot does
MMF 10% · Gold 20% · Bond 20% · Nasdaq 20% · S&P 30%	allocation target	ENFORCED (Apply)	Flows through Apply → the numeric targets; drives drift & the rebalance.
“buy gold below $4,000/oz”	absolute price trigger	ENFORCED	Checks live gold vs $4,000 → gates the commodity buy (buy above the level → HOLD), with provenance.
“add after a 15–20% pullback”	relative price trigger	MONITORED	Watchlisted and flagged when hit — does not gate a trade yet (needs a trailing-high reference).
“buy the bond fund in tranches”	execution style	ADVISORY	Annotates the fixed-income buy row (“execute in tranches”); prints in guidance.
“low fees, good liquidity”	selection screen	ADVISORY	Narrative guidance only — would need an instrument fee/liquidity dataset to bind.
“concerned about rate hikes”	macro intent	ADVISORY	Shapes the CIO commentary tone — a viewpoint, never a figure.

THE GUARDRAIL — TIERED, NOT ABSOLUTE

The copilot still never invents a number. An enforced condition can gate or flag a trade — using a figure sourced with provenance — but never fabricate one. Advisory and monitored items shape the words and the watchlist, never the maths.
